SMELTER FUMES

ARE NOW CHECKED

Salt Lake, Jan. 2.—What is expected will serve as a means of bringing the farmers and smelters together in an amicable adjustment of the differences that exist between them in the Salt Lake valley is the finding of the commission consisting of J. A. Holmes, director of the United States bureau of mines; Dr. E. A. Franklin, professor of organic chemistry, Stanford university, and R. A. Gould, chemical engineer of San Francisco. The findings of the commission after two years of successful experimentation and demonstration have been filed in the superior court of Solano county, California, and are as thorough and far reaching as to settle once for all the much disputed subject in California. The findings are a complete vindication of the baghouse system of filtration and dilution of gases.

The commission elected a staff of experts to investigate the claims made by both the farmers and the Selby Smelting & Lead company, operating in the San Francisco harbor district near Benicia, Cal. The smelting company had been in litigation with the farmers of that locality for alleged damages to crops and livestock and personal discomforts to individuals.

The staff selected by the commission consisted of scientific and technical men who had no interest in the findings of the board. It included A. E. Wells, metallurgist and chief chemist in charge of field experiments and smelter investigations; O. B. Dutton, special legal agent, United States bureau of mines; Charles F. Shaw, professor of agronomy, University of California; E. E. Free, soil expert and agronomist; W. W. Jones, plant pathologist; R. W. Doane, professor of entomology, Stanford university; C. H. Haring, professor of veterinary sciences, University of California; K. F. Meyer, professor of bacteriology and protozoology, University of California; Dr. Cottrell and Dr. Duschak of the United States bureau of mines.

FINDS PEACE PALACE

DAMP AND DESOLATE
Paris, Jan. 1.—The peace palace at The Hague looks lonely and desolate, says Andre Tudeq, the Journal's special correspondent, who is the first European to visit the building since the beginning of the war. M. Crenonius, the secretary, in immaculate evening suit and white kid gloves, who piloted the correspondent through the deserted halls, stated that nobody had been there since early in August, when a party of tourists, belonging to various belligerent nations and accompanied by a Cook's courier, indulged in a free fight in hall of sculpture and had to be ejected by force. Tudeq continues:

"The stately halls, plunged in darkness and chill, are not completely furnished. The library contains only sham volumes, whose splendid bindings conceal cardboard boxes. In the hall of justice twenty-five portraits of sovereigns and chiefs of state hang covered with draperies. 'Six of them,' said the secretary, 'have been assassinated since their portraits were placed there; which makes a proportion of 25 per cent. Others have died a natural death, and the rest are now at war with each other.'"

Continuing his visited bureaux where the actual work is done, Tudeq wound a lonely secretary busy with a heap of papers, which proved to refer to a quarrel between the conregation of the Sisters of St. Vincent, and Portugal, France and England.
